A TRADITION OF EXCELLENCE

There is a beauty in wood that can only be found when someone like Mike Angel knows how to make that beauty show through in finely hand crafted furniture. Mike's reputation for well-built, comfortable, handsome furniture has found its way across the country and Canada, often by word of mouth, articles in publications and displays at various craft shows. Mike is a member of four juried guilds, including the Kentucky Guild of Craftmen and Artist. His furniture is owned by many corporations, institutions and several well-known people, including the former U.S. President, George H. W. Bush, U.S. Representative Hal Rogers and former Kentucky Governor Steve Beshear.

What was originally a leisurely pursuit has developed into a thriving business. Mike's furniture is in such demand that he has drawn in not only members of his own family but those from the community, such as craftspeople, chair-weavers, wood carvers, sawyers, and loggers, to apply their skills to the various stages of business and furniture construction.

ABOUT US

In 1987 Mike seriously injured his leg and he returned to Kentucky to recuperate at his parents' home. During this time, he refinished some hickory-bottom chairs that his grandfather had made years before.

This project inspired Mike to study old-fashioned Appalachian designs, and experiment with woodworking techniques that led to making hickory-bottom chairs from scratch.

After Mike retired in 1994, he and his wife settled in Laurel County, Kentucky. Mike decided it was time to "get serious" about his chair-making. He created his own line of traditional "mule-ear" chairs, so-called because of the way the back posts of the chairs stick up, like ears on a mule.

HARDWOODS

We use woods that are indigenous to Kentucky that range in color from light to dark including ash, hickory, maple, oak, cherry and walnut. Occasionally we also work with small quantities of exotic woods such as lace wood, purple heart and others. If you are looking for something special just ask and we'd be happy to try to find it for you.

We love the warmth and character of wood and feel that the unique grain pattern illustrates both the time and place of the tree's growth. Wood's true beauty emerges gradually and develops a subtle, yet rich, patina that gives every piece of furniture its own personality.

As such our first choice for finishing is a high-quality clear lacquer, which allow the true nature and beauty of the wood to rise up and shine. If you have a different shade in mind please let us know so that our craftsmen can work with you to ensure our quality meets your expectations.

SEAT BOTTOM WEAVE OPTIONS

Our standard seat bottom is woven hickory, which is harvested just one time a year during the spring. We are BIG fans of weaving seats with authentic bark. This material is not mass-manufactured in China, it Paul Bunyan/Davy Crockett stuff that epitomizes life for most folks in the 19th century/pre-depression era of the 20th century.

We also offer Rattan, Fiber Rush, Brown County, Reed, Shaker Tape and Multi-Color Reed in a variety of patterns. Our weavers use traditional techniques and modern materials to produce attractive, durable results. Pricing based on market rates per square inch.

Woven Seat Descriptions and Pricing Per Square Inch
Weave	Description	Price per sq. in.
Rattan	8-10 mm herringbone pattern over 4	$.20

THE MULE-EAR CHAIR COLLECTION

Long before the craftsmen of the 1930s began to put together chairs, southern chair makers had adapted the standard slat-back chair with the rear posts shaved down and curved backwards, resulting in post that look like the ears of a mule. Red Dog & Company is proud to carry on this tradition with its mule-ear chair collection. Our dining chairs are constructed with 3 or 4 slats and hickory bottoms with or without arms. A favorite among authors who take our chairs to book signings is the desk chair, reminiscent of chairs from one-room schoolhouses.

THE PAGODA COLLECTION

One of our most popular items, the pagoda bench, is named for the upsweep on its ends, which is inspired by the eaves on multi-level Asian towers called pagodas.

Some pagodas are used as houses of worship with nearly all pagodas having a religious purpose. The modern pagoda is an evolution of the "stupa" which originated in ancient India. Their popularity spread throughout Asia and the architectural structure of the pagoda has many diverse forms since details specific to different regions are incorporated into the overall design.

THE SETTEE COLLECTION

For an heirloom you can pass down to your children's children, consider adding one of our settees to your collection. Beautiful and practical, they have been known to grace many homes for taking off shoes at the end of a long day or pulled up to a dining room table for extra seating. Our settees are available with solid seats as well as woven hickory bark seats and pair perfectly with our benches. Prices start at $900, depending on the hardwood selected and finishing details.

THE BENCH COLLECTION

Once upon a time, there were 3 bear that had 3 Red Dog benches that came in 3 standard sizes:

Large, for Papa Bear	36"l 15"w 18"h
Medium, for Mama Bear	24"l 14"w 18"h
Small, for Baby Bear:	18"l 12"w 18"h

Then Goldilocks came along and wanted a different size with custom engraving so they built it. It was juuuusstt right! We have benches to fit every size and budget. Laser engraving is available at an additional cost on all solid seat benches, stools and chair slats with pricing based on design complexity, size, content, and setup. Customized benches make wonderful gifts for any occasion and will be the gift he recipient will remember for years to come.
